Democrats Defeat Labor Slate

Philadelphia, May 18 (AP)—Democratic state committee candidates smashed a slate backed by Labor Leader John L. Lewis and Senator Joseph F. Guffey in Pennsylvania's primary and looked today for some avenue to peace in the bitter factional strife.

Returns from 7,027 of the state's 8,075 precincts assured victory to Governor George H. Earle for the Democratic senatorial nomination and to Pittsburgh's Charles Alvin Jones for the nomination for Governor.

Down before committee-endorsed 'ones, despite a primary-eve endorsement by Democratic National Committeeman James A. Farley, went Lieutenant Governor Thomas Kennedy. He was supported by Lewis, Guffy and the C.I.O.—as was Mayor S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, overwhelmed by Governor Earle.

May Ask F.D.R. to Intervene

Certain leaders of the triumphant state committee, which is headed by Secretary of the Commonwealth David L. Lawrence, were said in unconfirmed reports to be considering asking President Roosevelt's mediation in the party row that split an organization which in 1934 pushed Earle into office as the first Pennsylvania Democratic Governor in 44 years.

One report was that Lawrence, Governor Earle, Philadelphia Democratic City Committee Chairman John B. Kelly and Matthew H. McCloskey, Jr., Philadelphia co-leader, would meet here Thursday. There was no indication, however, that they would do more—than await peace overtures from Guffey's side.

G. O. P. Nominates James

Meanwhile, Republicans, who nominated Superior Court Judge Arthur H. James for Governor by a margin of landslide proportions over former Governor Gifford Pinchot, raised an anti-new deal battle cry and hailed the wounds opened in the Democratic lines as presaging a Republican return to state power in November.

Said Philadelphia Republican Chairman Jay Cooke:

"The Republican party will come into its own in Pennsylvania this year and will lead the way to Republican victory in the nation in 1940."

"The Democrats will never get together," said Chairman Kelly, although half-jokingly, as he joined in a celebration. "Jim Farley injected himself into the situation without invitation and without consulting us. Now let him inject himself in again and try to create some harmony."

Lawrence, Earle and Kelly all had greeted Farley's eleventh-hour peace proposal, made Monday, as unwelcomed "interference." Farley proposed that, looking toward harmony in November, Pennsylvania Democrats unite on Kennedy for Governor and Earle for Senator.

In the Republican Senatorial contest, which with the Republican Gubernatorial race was far overshadowed by the Democratic tumult, Senator James J. Davis won over G. Mason Owlett, state senator and Republican national committeeman.

Democratic Vote Doubled

Incomplete returns showed the Democrats polled more than double their votes cast in the 1934 primary while the Republicans also increased their totals. For Governor in 1934, the Democrats polled 569,744 and Tuesday they cast 1,034,988 with slightly more than 75 per cent of the districts heard from.

REV. PUTMAN IS RE-NAMED HEAD OF LUTHERANS

Preachers and lay delegates of Lutheran churches of five counties heard the Rev. Dwight F. Putman, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, here, declare the modern world is on a "materialistic rampage" demanding of preachers finer equipment, broader vision and sharper discipline than ever before, Tuesday as he delivered the annual president's message to the 114th annual convention of the West Pennsylvania synod of the Lutheran church. The synod is meeting at St. Paul's Lutheran church, Carlisle.

Preachers are experiencing, he said, the same "staggering impact" of anti-spiritual forces that swirl about our people." Referring in review to last year, the Rev. Mr. Putman declared that while he was not disposed to speak of spiritual advancement within the synod, he felt justified in feeling there are "new and deeper stirrings in many quarters."

Officers of the synod were re-elected Tuesday afternoon as follows: President, the Rev. Mr. Putman, and secretary, the Rev. R. R. Gresh; treasurer, the Rev. Dr. E. R. Ruby, and satistical secretary, the Rev. Dr. D. S. Martin, all of York.

Four hundred laymen from congregations in Cumberland, Adams, York, Franklin and Fulton counties attended the rally Tuesday evening. At that meeting, J. Milton Dick, of Philadelphia, president of the United Lutheran Church Brotherhood, was the speaker.

The two-day convention opened Tuesday morning when holy communion was administered to 166 clergymen and laymen. The Rev. Mr. Putman presided at the service, assisted by the Rev. R. R. Gresh and the Rev. E. C. Ruby, both of York, and the Rev. Glenn T. Hafer, of Hallam.

Officials who were elected as part of the convention program, will be installed this evening at the closing service, when several licenses to preach will be granted to theological

Both machines were towed to Gettysburg. Damage to Doctor Wright's car was placed at $100 while McSherry's car was damaged to the extent of about $50.

D. A. R. PRESENTS ESSAY AWARDS; RICE GIVES TALK

The thirty-fourth annual presentation of essay contest awards to Gettysburg high school seniors by officers of the Gettysburg chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the weekly assembly program at Gettysburg high school this morning. This is the fourth year at which the awards have been made at a school assembly session.

In the absence of Mrs. Harper D. Sheppard, Hanover, former regent of the local chapter and now a national vice president general of the D.A.R., the presentation of cash awards and honorable mention to the essay contest winners and the two students being honored as winners of the annual Junior American history awards was made by Mrs. Raymond F. Topper, regent of the Gettysburg chapter.

The first prize essay was read during the assembly program and an address was delivered by State Senator John S. Rice on the subject, "The Importance of National Defense."

1st Prize to John Saby

A cash prize of $10 was handed to John Saby, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Saby, Carlisle street, for his essay on "An Important Factor in National Defense—The Navy" which had been adjudged best among those entered. Howard Royer, son of S. E. Royer, Winchester, Virginia, received second prize of $5.

The American history prize of $5 for scholastic excellence in that study was presented to Eugene Hartman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hartman, Liberty street. Sara Mehring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mehring, South street, received "very honorable mention." Reading of the prize essay by its author followed the presentations.

Mrs. Topper presided over the exercises that opened with the singing of the first stanza of "America" led by Miss Dorothy Brindle, supervisor of music in the Gettysburg public schools. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was given by the assemblage which then joined in the Lord's prayer.

More than a score of members of the D.A.R. chapter occupied seats on the high school stage which was specially decorated for the occasion.

In the course of brief remarks before she handed the students their

Woman Satisfied To Vote Wrong Primary Ticket

STRANGE things happened in Adams county on primary election day.

At the court house Tuesday evening the story was told of a woman who was handed a ballot of the party opposite of that which she had requested of a member of the third ward election board.

After the election board member had passed out the wrong ballot by mistake, the woman entered the booth, voted and deposited the ballot in the box, so the story goes.

The mistake was not discovered until the board made its count and found one more ballot of one of the major parties than it had expected and one less paper bearing the names of candidates of the other party.

How the voter managed to check the candidates of her choice on the ballot of the opposite party was not explained by the narrator of the incident.

At the first ward, first precinct poll, the name of Al Capone was written in as a committeeman.

Allen Dubbs, Gettysburg, received a vote as a county vice chairman which was listed on the ballot as a "female" position. His name had been written in for the post.

62% of Vote Turns Out for Primary; Shields Loses to Thompson; Hartman Victor

Adams county voters added their majorities to those of the candidates of both parties that carried the state in Tuesday's primaries when about 62 per cent of the registered voters of the county cast 9,874 ballots.

Adams county Republicans gave Superior Court Judge Arthur H. James a plurality of about 2,900 over Gifford Pinchot on the basis of complete unofficial returns from the 42 voting districts of the county and at the same time handed United States Senator James J. Davis a vote that was nearly double that of his two opponents.

Meanwhile county Democrats were voting substantial majories to the entire Earle-Jones slate that has won nomination on the basis of nearly complete state-wide returns.

Congressman Harry L. Haines won the Democratic nomination in his candidacy for re-election to Congress from the 22nd district. Congressman Haines received 2,850 votes in Adams county while ballots for his two opponents totaled about a third of that figure. Large complimentary votes were recorded by the Republicans of the three counties for Chester H. Gross, York county, who was unopposed for the Republican congressional nomination.

Thompson Nominated

G. R. Thompson, for six years Republican county chairman, defeated William I. Shields and Charles E. Deatrick for the Republican nomination for the state Legislature while Dr. H. M. Hartman piled up a lead of nearly 700 over Charles H. Richter, seeking re-election, for the Democratic legislative nomination.

Samuel S. Lewis, York, former Pennsylvania Secretary of Highways, received more votes in this county than any other candidate on either ballot. His unofficial total for this county in his apparently successful race for the G.O.P. nomination for lieutenant governor, was 4,213. Congressman Harry L. Haines was high man among the Democrats with a total of 2,950 ballots cast in his favor.

The trend toward large majorities for Judge James, Senator Davis, S. S. Lewis, and William S. Livengood, Jr., for secretary of internal affairs in the Republican voting, and for the Earle-Jones candidates, developed early Tuesday night as the first returns were received. It was never overcome.

Large Majority for James

Listed among the biggest surprises of the election results in the county was the large majority given Judge James over former Governor Gifford Pinchot, exceeding by far even the estimates of his campaign manager, S. Luther Baltzley. James carried every district excepting York Springs where the Pike countian led by 12 votes.

The vote was:

James	4041
Pinchot	1142

Senator James J. Davis carried 34 of the 42 election districts here in the county, although the results were close in a number of instances. Each Gettysburg district gave Senator Davis a heavy preference over G. Mason Owlett, of Tioga county.

The unofficial figures for the county follow:

Davis	3284
Owlett	1603

Lewis and Mundy Lead

Although the figures on the Democratic tables of results showed smaller majorities than the G.O.P. figures on the Senate and Governor races, the leads of Governor George H. Earle for the Democratic nomination as Senator and of Charles Alvin Jones for Governor were sustained throughout the night and early morning.

The Democratic senatorial vote follows:

McCloskey	386
Wilson	1012
Earle	2674

Thomas Kennedy, C.I.O.-backed candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, was given 1,247 votes as compared with 2,495 for Jones. Charles J. Margiotti, former state attorney general, received a total of 425 votes.

Samuel S. Lewis, York, took an early lead in the Republican results for lieutenant governor. His opponents, Frank J. Harris and W. B. Brown, were given 718 and 292 votes, respectively. In the Democratic results for lieutenant governor Leo C. Mundy received 2,508 ballots. Votes for his opponents totaled about half that figure.

Haines Polls 23,837 Votes

Thomas A. Logue rode along on the Earle-Jones wave to a total of 2,711 votes for his candidacy for secretary of internal affairs, while Edith B. DeWitt received 1,037 counters.

Allison Defeats Sneeringer For State Democratic Post

The defeat of Edward J. Sneeringer, Conewago township, by Solomon L. Allison, Fairfield, for the post of Democratic state committeeman from Adams county was of most interest today as politicians surveyed the results of battles for district committee positions in both parties.

Allison, who was re-elected by a margin of 832 over Sneeringer, headed his opponent in 33 of the 42 voting districts. The final unofficial figures were: Sneeringer, 1492, and Allison, 2,324.

Observers today saw in Allison's victory a reflection of the triumph of the Earle-Jones slate throughout the list of Democratic candidates.

Particular interest was attached to fights for positions on district committee positions in the Democratic party in view of the forthcoming party convention at which the committeemen and women will name a county chairman.

Nowhere was the competition any keener than in the third ward where 15 candidates vied for seven posts.

Republicans elected three committeemen or women in most districts with names being written in where none appeared on the ballot.

John H. Basehore, Gettysburg justice of the peace and secretary of the G.O.P. county committee for several years, was advanced to the post of county chairman without opposition. He received a large complimentary vote placed at 3,951 in the unofficial count. Mrs. Eva B. Bowers, Cumberland township, Carlisle street extended, unopposed for the post of vice chairman, was given 3,595 votes.

Dr. Eugene Elgin, East Berlin, was re-named as the member of the Republican state committee from Adams county by a vote of 3,901.

Tie votes for district committee positions were recorded in several districts and in others the full number of committee members was not named, making appointments necessary to fill the vacancies. The ties will be broken at drawings at a time to be fixed by the county commissioners if those ties remain after the official count is completed.

DAYLIGHT TIME INAUGURATED

Gettysburg factories, schools and most business places advanced their clocks one hour at midnight Tuesday and worked on Daylight Saving Time today.

An announcement from the court house officials today states for the accommodation of both the citizens of the county remaining on Standard Time and for those going on "fast" time, the offices of the prothonotary, clerk of the courts, register and recorder, treasurer and commissioners are open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily without closing for a noon hour. That schedule will be followed each week from Monday to Friday inclusive but on Saturdays the offices will close at 12 o'clock Standard Time. The tower and office clocks continue to show Standard Time.

The Reading freight office staff will go on Daylight Time Thursday and will work from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m., it was announced today. The change will not affect train schedules which will remain on Standard Time.

DELIVER STEEL FURNITURE

New steel furniture which has been purchased by the Adams county commissioners for their office and those of the prothonotary and the treasurer in the court house was being delivered today.

3 Tables Show Result of Vote

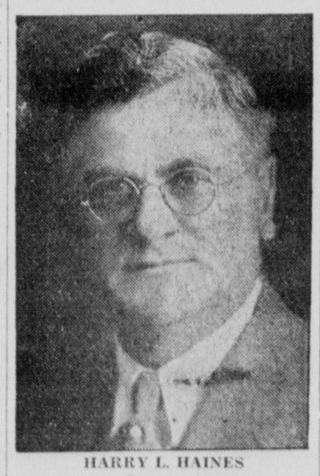

Three tables bearing the unofficial tabulation of the primary vote are published on page five of today's Gettysburg Times. Two of the tables include results of the voting for the state and county offices and the third comprises the winners in the contests for state and county Democratic and Republican committee positions.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Betty Routsong, Bendersville, and John Sipling, Hanover R. D., submitted to operations this morning at the Warner hospital for the removal of their tonsils. Mrs. George Coshun, Barlow street, was discharged as a patient.

prizes, Mrs. Topper explained that in the annual essay contests the chapter seeks to uphold the honored tradition of the founders of the Gettysburg organization "in the hope that each annual event will form a milestone along the highway to good citizenship."

State Senator Rice was introduced by Miss Helen Cope, chairman of the chapter's committee on National Defense Through Patriotic Education. In his introductory remarks the speaker held peace and war to be vital issues and not merely academic issues. He declared that the desire for peace on the part of a nation is not enough to prevent war and added that "it doesn't take two nations to make a war—it can be thrust upon a nation when it is weak or off guard."

Senator Rice asserted that preparedness usually, although not always averts war. He pointed to the "depressing truth" that public opinion is of no effect in restraining unethical actions on the part of militaristic nations and cited Italy's invasion of Ethiopia, the war in China and the seizure of Austria by Germany as instances to prove his statement.

Nations that may cause war were divided into two classes by the state senator, namely, bully nations and those of the cowering type that refuse to admit or face realities in the direction of national defense. He asserted that if the United States should go to war today it could place only about a half million soldiers in the field, a smaller number than any other first rate nation of the world and no more than many of the second rate countries.

Little regard is held for the rights of a weak nation that lacks the power to enforce its objections to abuses, he declared, and made mention of the unprepared condition of the United States for the 1917 emergency. Constant armed vigilance must be maintained in working for peace, Senator Rice said as he declared the costs of adequate defenses should be regarded as the payment of a premium on insurance against war. He added that democracies of all governments are most in need of preparedness to maintain peace.

During the program a contralto solo was presented by Mrs. George H. Amick, a member of the chapter. She was accompanied by Ruth Martin, a high school freshman. The selection was Kipling's "Recessional."

The program was concluded with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

The committee on decorations which arranged the stage for this morning's program included Mrs. J. Allen Deardorff, Mrs. Victor Duttera, and Mrs. C. N. Gitt. Mrs. Mary McClean supplied the palms that were used on the platform.

The committee on National Defense Through Patriotic Education, which is headed by Miss Cope, includes the following: Mrs. John Mumper, Mrs. James P. Cairns, Mrs. C. Ross Shuman, Mrs. John D. Lippy, Mrs. C. Richard Wolff and Mrs. Robert Marsh. That group was in charge of the essay contest.

cans cast 1,220,963. In Tuesday's voting they cast 1,109,805.

Districts still unreported today were largely scattered through the western Pennsylvania soft coal re-pugilistic and once mayor of Johnstown, fell far out of the running as a Democratic senatorial candidate.

Returns from 5,471 of the state's 8,075 precincts gave Kennedy 342,318 votes, to 433,350 for Jones.

The count of 5,380 precincts gave Earle 541,974, and Wilson, 194,514.

Jones, be-spectacled and soft-voiced, came to the campaign from a relatively obscure but active legal and political career. He won a French citation for heroism as a World war ambulance driver, later enlisted with the American forces. He went to the 1932 Democratic convention as an Alfred E. Smith backer, but swung to Roosevelt after the final ballot. The Jones family—three children—live in a Pittsburgh suburb.

Earle, too, won World war honors as a lieutenant-commander in the Navy. He had been a Republican but joined the New Deal six years ago and was appointed minister to Austria. He became Governor in a Democratic sweep of this then traditionally Republican state in 1934.

Pinchot Congratulates James

Former Governor Gifford Pinchot early conceded victory to red-haired Judge Arthur H. James, of the State Superior court. James, an anthracite mine worker in his youth and lieutenant governor a decade ago, carried the standard of the old-line Republican organization.

Returns from 6,980 precincts gave James 851,765, and Pinchot 384,390.

"I congratulate you on your victory," said a Pinchot telegram to James even before Tuesday midnight.

James replied:

"When I enter the ring against the New Deal this fall, we are counting on you in our corner."

Virtually the same state leaders who backed James took a loss, however, in the victory of "Puddler Jim" Davis. They had supported G. Mason Owlett, State Senator and national committeeman. Returns from 6,867 precincts gave Davis 692,070; Owlett 407,242.

The Republicans nominated Samuel S. Lewis for lieutenant governor and W. S. Livengood, Jr., for secretary of internal affairs, both organization men.

Mundy Nominated

Democrats nominated state committee-endorsed candidates for two other state offices, State Senator Leo C. Mundy for lieutenant governor and Thomas A. Logue, incumbent, for secretary of internal affairs. The vanquished Lewis-Guffey candidates were Judge Ralph H. Smith and Edith B. DeWitt.

The Democratic turn-out was the largest in the party's primary election history.

Laid open to question was the national political stature of Senator Guffey. An ardent Roosevelt adherent, lately mentioned as a vice presidential possibility in 1940, Guffey had been regarded as the Pennsylvania New Deal chieftain who could deliver a commanding block of 72 votes in the national convention.

But Guffey split with his state committee over its endorsement of Jones for Governor and threw it with Lewis and the C.I.O. forces. As the committee slate won without him, Guffey even saw his home district in Pittsburgh lost to the foe.

Expect November Fight

The results presage a tempestuous November general election fight.

Pinchot, whose campaign chant was "clean up the mess" at the state capitol, has promised to support the Republican nominees.

Guffey, although declining to make a pre-primary assertion that he would support the Democratic nominees, reminded questioners that "I always was a Democrat."

Speculation developed over whether the Democratic high command would propose a compromise slate for the fall campaign. National Chairman James A. Farley suggested a coalition in a primary-eve statement, urging the nomination of Kennedy from one slate and Earle from the other.

May "Sacrifice" Jones

The possibility that Jones still might be sacrificed for Kennedy was discussed in political circles, but State Chairman David L. Lawrence, now sitting on top of the heap, had warned in advance of Tuesday's balloting there would be no post-primary "deals."

It is too late to pre-empt independent tickets for November, but nominees have three or four months to withdraw and recognized party organizations may make substitutions.

No comment was immediately forthcoming from Margiotti—but the charges he and others made were up for airing anew in a hearing before the state Supreme court in Philadelphia.

The court set late today for arguments on a petition for a permanent injunction against a projected Dauphin county grand jury investigation of charges of bribery and corruption against "higher-ups" in the Democratic state leadership.

The results of at least two Democratic congressional fights were significant.

Representative Michael J. Stack, Philadelphia, was defeated for renomination. Stack was one of the most vociferous opponents of the Roosevelt administration's government reorganization bill. He was the only Pennsylvania Democrat who voted to recommit the wage-hour bill last December. Stack lost every ward to Francis J. Myers, a deputy state's attorney general who campaigned on a Roosevelt platform with the support of the Philadelphia Democratic committee.

Representative Patrick J. Boland, Democratic whip of the House and outspoken champion of all administration policies, won re-nomination.

Celebration started in the Philadelphia hotel suite of Governor Earle early in the evening as returns indicated his walk-away.

The merry-makers soon monopolized an entire floor.

Early today, the Governor, in blue serge, smiling broadly, met a cheering group in the corridors. Comely Mrs. Earle joined him.

"How about a pose kissing the Governor?" someone shouted to Mrs. Earle.

"I've done it before," came the gay reply—and she did it again, as flashlights popped.

HOLLYWOOD

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—To find bewildered people in Hollywood is easy. Practically everyone is bewildered, because all Hollywood is that way either from surfeit of fortune or complete lack of it.

But when it comes to the most bewildered person in this bewildered town, that's a tough one to answer—unless you ask the question right now. Have you asked it? Then the answer is:

Sigrid Gurie.

No movie fan has ever recognized her, few have heard of her, and even in Hollywood not one person in a hundred knows she's the luckiest of newcomers.

Miss Gurie, a few months ago just a pretty blonde who traveled to work in buses, brought her lunch with her and hurried home nights to cook, wash dishes and clean house, today has finished her first leading role in pictures. And her first leading role—truly her first role—was opposite Gary Cooper in a super-super called "The Adventures of Marco Polo."

Shunned Photographers

Sigrid has been in Hollywood a year, but she knows little of it. It's a plot, of course. Samuel Goldwyn, who signed her, ordered her to stay home nights, to avoid interviewers, to shun photographers. Goldwyn, probably because he had over-publicized another foreign discovery named Anna Sten to no good end, had decided on the opposite extreme for Gurie.

Two months ago she was called from her 'retreat" and put to work. She kept on using the public bus as a means of transportation—and each morning she was the only girl aboard who knew that Sigrid Gurie had a date at the studio to make love to Cooper.

Still Avoids Crowds

She preferred the bus to driving because Los Angeles traffic overwhelmed her. Just lately her father—reading in a Norwegian paper that she was a bus-rider—sent her a new coupe, and she's tentatively driving that.

She still stays away from previews, picture shows, and public appearances generally. Ask her how she likes Hollywood and she replies, with a whimsical smile: "How should I know what Hollywood is?"

ARENDTSVILLE DROPS PLAYOFF TO NEW OXFORD

New Oxford high school's baseball team won the championship of the Adams county interscholastic league for the second consecutive year by defeating Arendtsville in a playoff tilt at Littlestown Tuesday afternoon, 6-0.

C. Byers, ace hurler for Coach Jack Miller's aggregation, was in fine form holding Arendtsville to two safties and fanning 15 batsmen. Thomas turned in a splendid performance for Arendtsville but weakened in the final frame. Three hits combined with several errors to allow New Oxford to push over five runs and to sew up the contest.

New Oxford scored a single run in the fourth inning and no further scoring was done until the final inning. Byers and Thomas held their opponents well in check in a fine hurling duel.

After New Oxford exploded its five-run attack in the first half of the seventh Byers fanned three batsmen to retire Arendtsville and close the game.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 18 (AP).—Sports writers here with the Cubs say if there is a niftier third sacker than Stanley Hack in either major league, they are willing to learn. . . . Leonard Crawley, one of the British Walker cuppers, hits 200 practice balls each morning before breakfast.

Beg pardon dept.: That squib last week about North Carolina having the most professional baseball leagues —20—drew a howl from Texas. . . . Even the girlies wrote in to claim the honor for Texas, which boasts 24. . . . Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton, former teammates on the Cardinals and now together on the Cubs, have kissed and made up. . . . They had only one falling out in seven years but boy, how the feud lasted.

Tuesday was Norwegian Fourth of July. . . . Joe McCarthy had promised his Norwegian catcher, Arndt Jorgens, he could catch the game against the Browns. . . . Just when Arndt got all steamed up for what may be his only chance behind the plate this season, the durned game was rained out. . . . The lads along Broadway are going strong for War Admiral against Seabiscuit.

Joe Marty, young Cub outfield star who poked out a homer with two on, Tuesday, gives Tony Lazzeri credit for his improved hitting. . . . Says Tony made him change his stance.

These don't happen often: The Reds once played a complete ball game with only two balls. . . . The first was hit into the stands early in the pastiming. . . . Three dozen balls are used in an average major league game. . . . Secret of Augie Galan's amazing comeback at the plate is the fact he had a film-like growth removed from his right eye. . . . Augie says the ball used to "jiggle" every time it neared the plate.

CONFER ON CONDITION OF BABY COLAN

Chicago, May 18 (AP)—Medical experts were summoned to a conference today to decide whether baby Helaine Colan's right eye should be removed—as was her left—to save her life. Hopes that the impaired vision in the eye might be preserved were jolted when a spokesman for the Colan family said there were "indications" the eye would have to be removed to prevent death from glioma, a cancerous growth. The left eye was removed May 9.

33 BODIES RECOVERED

Atlanta, May 18 (AP)—Firemen and laborers today neared the end of their gruesome search for bodies in the ruins of the burned Terminal hotel—a search which already has yielded 33 bodies. Seven bodies were recovered Tuesday. Three victims of the Monday morning blaze, two men and one woman, are unidentified.

Ad Helps Return Watch to Owner

A "lost" ad inserted in the Gettysburg Times this week brought quick results for William L. Adair, 153 York street, Tuesday evening.

A woman, who did not identify herself, read the advertisement Tuesday evening and a few minutes later appeared at the Adair home with the gold watch she had found along York street a day or two earlier.

She reluctantly accepted the reward pressed upon her by Adair and then went on her way without giving her name.

GIANTS WIN IN 12TH FROM CUBS ON LESLIE'S HIT

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National leaguers finally have found that new ball that was intended to help the pitchers so much this season.

The flingers had been getting their ears pinned back regularly, but Tuesday's games indicate they certainly had something. Maybe it was that helpful new ball.

Four games in the senior circuit produced: two one-hitters, one three and one four-hit hurling job, and in the day's major contest, a 12-inning duel between the league-leading New York Giants and the challenging Chicago Cubs.

Although six flingers saw service before Sambo Leslie's pinch single in the 12th gave the Giants a 6-5 triumph, still it was a well pitched game by Cliff Melton of the Giants and Clay Bryant, Cubs' relief hurler.

The one-hit pitching feats included a joint effort by Russ Bauers and Sewell of Pittsburgh, who lost to the Boston Bees 1-0 and thereby qualified for the second rank of hard-luck guys, and Fiddler Bill McGee of the St. Louis Cardinals, who beat Brooklyn 2-1.

Bauers granted one hit before retiring for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. A wild throw by Lloyd Waner resulted in Boston's lone run. For the Bees Milt Shoffner pitched three-hit ball.

Goddy Rosen, who spoiled a no-hitter for Hal Schumacher earlier in the year, made the only Dodger hit off McGee.

Paul Derringer pitched Cincinnati's Reds to a 13-1 victory, limiting the Phillies to four blows.

The American league also got a share of the fine flinging in its only game as Cleveland's Earl Whitehill set the Athletics down with four blows and beat them 5-1. Three other contests, New York-St. Louis, Boston-Chicago and Washington-Detroit, were rained out.

Hollywood

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—There's a story behind Joan Crawford's new straight five-year contract with Metro—"straight" meaning without options—signed the other day in New York.

Joan has been taking singing lessons for several years, more or less on the quiet.

Well, the matter of Joan's new contract has been in the air for some time. There were all sorts of rumors that she might leave Metro, where she'd been on the payroll continuously since 1925 when as Lucille LeSueur she got $75 a week.

Whether with contract discussions in mind we don't know, but one day Joan arranged with the studio music department to make a recording with full orchestra of an operatic aria and a couple of popular songs.

Joan's agent, Mike Levee, heard the record and went to see Louis B. Mayer, the Metro boss. Just as a favor, would Mr. Mayer listen to a voice he'd discovered? Mr. Mayer would and did—and at the end he wanted to know WHO. It seems Joan really has a voice, and if you doubt it there's that contract for five straight years to prove it. Actually, it may amount to seven years because Joan has the right to appear in three stage plays and to broadcast, and plays would mark time out.

So around 1943, at the soonest, Joan will leave the M-G-M fold, with a record of at least 18 years at one studio, 15 of them as a star.

When Joan was just hitting stardom in "Our Dancing Daughters" one of Hollywood's reigning queens was Anna Q. Nilsson. The lissome blond star of "Ponjola" and other films was fated to leave the screen at the height of her glory. She fractured a hip in a horseback accident, spent five years as a cripple, and five years after that traveling.

Met her again on the set of "Prison Farm" the other day—her first picture since the accident. She has a small role, that of a prison matron, but she is contented, alive and eager to "find my niche."

"Ten years make a difference," she smiled, "and I couldn't expect to play the youthful roles I once had. But one can't live in Hollywood, having once been a part of it, without wanting to work. Money? I've enough. I had a good manager who invested my earnings wisely. My health is fine. I'm taking up golf"—she chuckled—"that's good for reducing hips. People still inquire solicitously how I'm feeling, and seem surprised that I'm no longer an invalid. Horseback-riding? Well, I haven't been on a horse since my accident, and I can't say I'd go out of my way to meet one—but I wouldn't be afraid to ride if I had it to do!"

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet will be held at the school auditorium in Biglerville at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening. The feature of the program will be the presentation of a playlet by a group of girls from St. James Lutheran church, Gettysburg. Mrs. O. A. Nary is general chairman of the committees in charge of arrangements for the affair.

FOUR ESCAPE LEBANON JAIL

Lebanon, Pa., May 17 (AP).—Four prisoners overpowered a lone guard and escaped from the Lebanon county prison in the lowntown section early today.

Howard Hibsman, guard, reported the men lured him into their cell under the pretext that one of them was sick, then threatened him with a gun, a knife, and a club, and forced him to release them.

Hibsman identified the men as Lendiz Reitz, 20; Paul Dehm, 25, and Earl Young and Aaron Schott, both about 25.

He said Reitz "played sick." Hibsman said as he entered the cell to help him, Schott shoved a gun against his body, and Reitz a knife against his back, while Young brandished a club. They marched him to the main door, compelled him to unlock it, the guard said, and warned him not to spread an alarm.

Hibsman said Dehm and Schott were senteced recently on larceny charges, while the others were awaiting trial, Reitz charged with larceny and Young with pointing firearms.

Never put woodenware directly over the heat to dry. That causes the wood to warp, and perhaps to crack. Thoroughly dry it, however, before putting it in a cupboard, since it may mildew if you store it too soon. Let it stand in a room of moderate temperature, or near the stove.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

WILLY NILLY'S DOUBTS

"CHRISTOPHER! Christopher Columbus Crow!" cried Willy Nilly.

He had just returned from the pond and had seen how all the Puddle Muddlers were digging for the hidden treasure. Willy Nilly had told them he would be back in short time but they had urged him to attend to his garden and his many chores.

They wanted, they said, to surprise him with the treasure when they found it. They seemed glad that he had not been around to see them before. They felt that surely in no time at all now they would find the hidden treasure—much too well hidden though it was. And they did not want to bother him—they merely wanted a great and enormous treat for him.

As he approached the house he had seen the crow flying to his nest, and now he could not see Christopher at all.

"He's hiding. He does not want to see me. What does all this mean, I wonder?" thought Willy Nilly. Again he called:

"Christopher! Christopher Columbus Crow!" But the crow's head did not appear above the nest.

"Now Christopher, don't pretend you are so fast asleep you cannot hear me. Even if your head is under your wing you would be able to hear me calling like this," shouted Willy Nilly. "And I don't believe you are asleep. You are hoping I won't call you any more.

"Christopher, come down from your nest."

Christopher's head popped up above the nest. He looked down at Willy Nilly. "I'm very sleepy. Could we talk another time?" he cawed.

CLAY

Out of the clay there grows
A bright, red rose.
Out of the clod there spring
Branch, bud and blossoming.
Nearby is clay that lies
Solven to all men's eyes.
Lost to all thought and care
Nothing but waste is there.
So in a self-same way
Time deals with mortal clay.
This wears the rags of doom,
That brings a soul to bloom.

Today's Talk

—By George Matthew Adams—

B. FRANKLIN

THIS is a talk about an American citizen, but who might better be termed a citizen of the world—Benjamin Franklin.

I can make no more valuable suggestion to a boy, as he starts out in life, than to read the autobiography of this remarkable man. It should be a textbook in every school.

Franklin didn't have many advantages, or so-called tools to work with in his time—so he used the most valuable instrument that he did have—his own head. He made the most of everything at hand. He was one of the most versatile men who ever lived. He was a printer, a newspaper publisher, an inventor, a diplomat, a statesman, and an author whose writings and wise sayings will forever remain as a great heritage to us all.

Franklin, in his day, invented the smokeless chimney, bifocal lens for glasses, the water-tight compartments for ships at sea, and he discovered electricity and initiated the first Philadelphia fire company. In his adopted city he also founded the first hospital, introduced street paving, street cleaning and street lighting. Every problem was a challenge—and he was forever looking ahead and improving everything that he touched, or could influence—and he influenced the entire nation and the world!

I have discovered in his wise writings the suggestion for a world league of nations in order to preserve and keep the peace—at a time when, had it been formed, this might have been a much happier world today than it is—with nations armed to the teeth, only awaiting the opportunity to tear at one another's throats.

Imagine what would happen in this world today with just one Benjamin Franklin in our midst! Nothing stumped Franklin. He was the most useful man of his time—and his usefulness has by no means faded away.

Will a few Franklins please step up to accept the challenges that our complex social and governmental life have presented! They must be met—and they will be—for a new dawn is at hand.

Octagon House

By Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Story So Far: Unscrupulous Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has aroused Quanomet, is murdered by a left handed blow from her sister's knife. Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, hides hunted Pam Frye in his house. He learns these facts: Pam found $50,000 worth of ambergris which Marina tried to claim, and hid it after discovering Marina dead in the garage; someone who smokes turkish tobacco was eavesdropping on Pam's story to learn the whereabouts of the ambergris; agreeable Tim Carr, boarder at the Frye's Octagon House, smokes Turkish tobacco, is left handed and hated Marina in New York. While Asey is talking to Tim and his grandmother, Pam disappears from her room.

Chapter 11

Where Is Pam?

"If that note isn't genuine," Timothy said, "then it's the most reasonable facsimile I ever saw. Even to that little squiggle under her name. What d'you think?"

"I think," Asey said, "that she wrote the note."

"What'll we do now?" Mrs. Carr asked.

"You might's well go 'long back to Octagon House," Asey said, "an' get some sleep. If Hanson asks, say that you tried and tried but you can't move me. I just don't seem to care about the case. But tell Aaron Frye that she's all right, and I'll do what I can."

Asey stared thoughtfully up the road as the little coupe whizzed off.

He wanted to like those two. They honestly seemed desirous of helping Pam Frye out of this business. They were candid, they were human, they were pleasant. They liked their cat, and their cat liked them. And Asey had a certain respect for people whom cats liked. This great red beast did not belong to the Carrs; they belonged to her.

On the other hand, their very candidness was against them. Had they come to pump him, to find out where Pam was? Had Timothy Carr unearthed the ambergris—say, in the cellar, or the coal bin, or wherever Pam had hidden it? Could Tim Carr have been the prowler? Could Mrs. Carr somehow have whisked Pam away, while Tim chatted inconsequentially about Marina and his life in the quadratic surd business? And his story about Marina—there was a certain glib quality about the key-maker and the rest of it, that made one wonder. Asey shook his head. He wished he knew the answers.

There was one place where he had purposely not hunted while Tim and his grandmother were around, and he strolled there now, along the path to the landing. Pam didn't know the first thing about automobiles, but she did know about boats.

Why should she have gone? There wasn't an earthly reason, unless she had some quixotic notion that her presence in his house was dangerous to Asey. That was the only explanation he could think of. If she had been whisked away—but she couldn't have. People couldn't be whisked as quietly as all that. Pam was a strong, healthy girl. She wouldn't have allowed any one to snatch her, not without raising a rumpus first.

Unless—the simplicity of the solution brought him to a standstill. Unless someone whom she knew and trusted had come. And what was it Pam had said, something about intending to tell her male boarder about the ambergris before she set out to Boston, because he seemed such a decent sort?

'It Ain't Human'

She'd had no chance to tell him, of course. But just supposing that Timothy had climbed up on the roof and talked to her through the window, while Asey was downstairs in the kitchen. He might have lured her away by some yarn about the ambergris. Then Pam wrote the note, slipped into another room, slipped out while Asey and Tim were talking downstairs, or while they were out by the coupe in the driveway. Pam might, for all Asey knew, have been in the car all the time!

But if she had gone on her own, she would have made for the water. There was no harm in looking into the situation. The sharpie, however, was there by the landing, and the Mary B rode her mooring. The canvas cockpit cover was in place. She hadn't been touched.

On sudden impulse, Asey unlocked the shanty at the foot of the landing, and hunted up a padlock.

Then, with the short jerky stroke of the Cape Codder, he rowed out to the Mary B and firmly locked her chain to the mooring. If any professional boat thief really wanted to steal the craft, that padlock would not stop him. But if Pam Frye had any fancy notions of making off with the Mary B, that padlock would effectively put a damper on the excursion.

The first streaks of dawn showed over the outer beach as he returned to the landing. As he tied up the sharpie, the tide turned with a roar, and the red streaks darkened. The air was damp as the great fog banks hanging off shore started to creep in.

Asey turned up the collar of his shirt and started back for the house. "Huh," he said aloud, "my hat's off to whoever got her, that's what. Or to her, if she sneaked off by herself. It ain't human.

The sound of a car drawing up in his driveway completely drowned out the slight crackle in the bushes just beyond him.

Dr. Cummings got out of his old sedan. "Asey," he said, "this has been a night!"

"You," Asey returned, think you're tellin' me anything? Pooh."

"Roughly speaking, Hanson has his entire command hunting Pam Frye," Cummings said. "I see no particular reason to think she'll stay outside the dragnet very much longer. And Nettie—Asey, you've got to squelch her. Someone's got to. She's talked all night. To the police, to the reporters, to anyone who'd listen. And as she talks, she decorates. She now says that Pam spent the entire evening nervously fingering the knife at her belt, occasionally pausing to snarl viciously, like a spotted leopard in a peeve. She says that Pam dashed out at nine, she saw Pam dash toward the Lornes' garage, and that when Pam returned, there was no knife at her belt. And her expression was that of a leopard after a dinner. Now, you know, that's not going to do Pam Frye any good!"

Asey agreed. "Has she made any statements?"

"Hanson's been too busy to get one from her, but the reporters—wouldn't it be the only time in the life of Quanomet that reporters were there in droves? They've got Nettie's life story, and Pam's life story from Nettie—and both will be greeting John Public over his orange juice and toast, very shortly. And the fact that it's the mural's artist's wife who was killed—that's not going to be any soft pedal."

"What about Lorne?"

'It's A Mess'

"He's in a frenzy. I'm beginning to think he loved Marina."

"He is left handed," Asey said.

"No, I noticed particularly that he wasn't," Cummings said.

"But he is when he paints," Asey informed him. "An'—"

"Are you sure?"

"I got hold that tonight. You might check up on it, if you can. Does Hanson know where he was—an' by the way, was Marina killed at nine?"

"Wouldn't know for sure, I'd say between nine and ten. No, Hanson hasn't delved into Lorne. Lorne's acting just the way a bereaved and outraged husband should, and Hanson is deeply moved by it. I think he'd sooner suspect his own mother than Jack Lorne. Look—what about Pam? Where can she be?"

"I had her here," Asey said. "She was under the wharf while you an' Hanson strode over her head—"

"Where is she now? There are a couple of things I'd like to clear up—is she asleep?"

"She's gone," Asey said, and told him the whole story.

Cummings whistled.

"Did she fall—or was she pushed. Asey, that's awful. And ambergris—look, we'll have to get that out of the way of the police—where is it?"

"Search me," Asey said. "If the cops didn't find it in the Octagon House, I'd say it wasn't there. Pam never did tell me where it was."

"Ambergris—look, we'll have to do something about that!" Cummings said. "We'll have to get it away, and sold, and fixed for Pam. If Marina told anyone about it—why, for all we know, a dozen people might be hunting for it!"

"It," Asey said, "and Pam, too. And if the cops find it, well—we could blot Nettie Hobbs out, and all she's said. Once the cops find out about that ambergris incident, and Pam's taking it from the garage, with the sister dead, well, we won't think about that part."

Cummings sighed. "It's a mess. I wouldn't know where to start."

"Are you sure about that left handedness," Asey said, "or were you impressin' Hanson?"

"I'm quite certain that whoever killed Marina thrust that knife with his left hand, and as a reasonably husky sort. Of course, I won't say it isn't possible that someone didn't stand on his head and stab with the right hand—Asey, I'm so tired I can't think. Call me when you want me, and when you've figured out some plan or other. I think you'll do well to continue letting Hanson think you won't help him. Otherwise the police'll be around your neck, and they'll curtail you considerably. I'll fume at you, to make it seem genuine. I'll also pass along anything that happens. And—see if you can't squelch Nettie. She's gone too far."

"Okay," Asey said. "I'll see if somethin' can't get started."

He noticed, as he returned to the house, that the fog was going out and that the wind had shifted again. If it hadn't, he might possibly have caught another whiff of that Turkish tobacco he had smelled earlier, by the landing.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

NEW AILMENT

Conshohocken, Pa.—Surgeons diagnosed the illness of 12-year-old Howard Noble as "plumitis." He was stricken ill suddenly and an operation was performed. Surgeons found in his appendix a plum pit he said he had swallowed last Christmas.

WEALTH SHARER

West Plains, Mo.—A pickpocket who lifted Herman Crider's wallet had an attack of conscience. He took only $5 from it, returning $75 and the wallet by mail.

SNAKE EYES!

San Francisco—Lee Juarna sleepily reached out to turn off his 6 a. m. alarm clock—and stared into the eyes of a five-foot snake. He sprang from bed and summoned help. Jerry Dalmadge of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals deftly captured the big gopher, a harmless variety, with a loop on a long pole. But he couldn't explain how the reptile got into Juarna's fourth floor room.

N-I-C-E DOGGIE

Toledo, Ore.—R. C. Bemrose's children complained that an unsociable "doggie" had run under the barn. He shot the animal and collected $25 in bounties for a six-foot cougar.

BRIDAL ESCORT

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Sheriff James Smith accompanied Herbert Schwensohn, 29, a bridegroom, to the church, but he didn't serve as best man. He waited until Schwensohn was married to Miss Uantha Skenner, 19, and returned him immediately to jail to serve a 30-day sentence on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

MISUNDERSTANDING

Omaha, Neb.—Mrs. Carrie Eden, 19, Omaha, got a divorce she didn't want. When notified of the decree she hastened back to the court room where she had previously testified and told Judge Herbert Rhoades that "I thought I was just suing to get back some money my father loaned my husband. I don't want a divorce." Judge Rhoads set aside the decree.

JAP ARTILLERY POUNDS SUCHOW, RAIL JUNCTION

(By The Associated Press)

The Japanese siege of Suchow today highlighted an international situation in which other developments were increasing Franco-Italian friction, minor Insurgent victories in the Spanish Civil war and a renewal of tension between Poland and Lithuania.

Artillery pounded the walls of Suchow, clearing an entry for Japanese infantry ready to assault the central China railroad junction city. Chinese defenders were reported withdrawing.

Dispatches said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek had moved most of his central government troops to the west, leaving about 250,000 provincials to carry on the fight around Suchow.

The Chinese leader was said to be preparing defenses west of Suchow in expectation of a Japanese offensive against Hankow, temporary seat of the Chinese government.

Franco-Italian talks in Rome met formidable obstacles. Diplomats said Premier Mussolini was demanding that France recognize the Insurgent leader, General Francisco Franco, as master of all Spain and assure Italy of equal governing rights in France's protectorate of Tunisia.

The trouble between Poland and Lithuania arose from an old dispute over Wilno. The Polish minister, Franciszek Charwat, protested to the Lithuanian government over retention of a clause in the Lithuanian constitution referring to Wilno as the "lawful capital of Lithuania." Poland seized Wilno in 1920 and has held it since.

In Spain, the Insurgents captured heights along the battlefront running from Teruel east to the Mediterranean coast and began preparations for a general offensive down the coast against Castellon and Valencia.

The situation in Mexico remained uncertain, with President Lazaro Cardenas' government still in economic trouble because of a curtailment of revenues from oil.

Sidelights Of Primary

(By The Associated Press)

Comedy and pathos accompanied Pennsylvanians to the polls in Tuesday's primary election.

Election officials halted a voter entering a booth at Philadelphia with his wife. "Look," said the voter, "I've lived with her for 20 years; there wouldn't be anything wrong with me going in there with her."

Candidates supported by Senator Guffey (D-Pa) lost in the Senator's home district at Pittsburgh. In the Senate race, Governor Earle polled 79 votes to 28 for Mayor S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia. Guffey-endorsed Thomas Kennedy got 30 votes for the gubernatorial nomination, while Charles Alvin Jones received 73.

Dunmore borough's fire truck was parked outside while the fire house was used as a voting place. Fire Chief Frank Murphy appeared, ordered the truck inside. Attorney Morris Arnovits hurried to court, charging the fire engine with interfering with the election. The court agreed—and ordered the truck back into the street.

Death cheated Miss Mae Kerr out of certain election as Republican committeewoman in Lansdowne borough's fifth district. Unopposed for the post, she died while being elected. She was stricken with pneumonia two days previously.

William C. Miller, of Philadelphia, drove 180 miles to cast a Republican ballot—but all in vain. His registration card had been mislaid and he didn't have time to wait for the registration commission to search for it.

For the first time since he cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln for President in 1864, Basil Lemley, 95, missed getting to the polls Tuesday in Mt. Morris. He is ill in his home in this Greene county town.

Chester voters approved a $700,000 bond issue to construct an addition to the high school building in which crowded conditions led to a student strike. The students went on strike protesting the expulsion of the editor of a school paper who criticised the school board for not providing sufficient facilities. The strike was ended when the editor was allowed to return to school and the school board approved plans for a new wing subject to the approval of the bond issue. The vote was 7557 to 3394.

MARGIOTTI TO UNDERGO TREATMENT FOR KNEE

Pittsburgh, May 18 (AP).—Charles J. Margiotti, twice defeated candidate for Governor—once by Republicans and once by Democrats—will enter a hospital today as a patient.

The former attorney general will undergo an operation for a knee injury received when he bumped the knee boarding a train several days ago in Philadelphia.

Margiotti had nothing to say regarding the results of the primary. He asserted he wanted to study the figures before making any announcement.

CLAIMS VICTORY FOR F. D. R.

Pittsburgh, May 18 (AP).—David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Democratic state committee, today wired President Roosevelt: "As chairman of the Pennsylvania Democratic state committee, I am proud to report another victory for the Roosevelt democracy in Tuesday's primaries."

TO GRATE APPLES

Grated apples often are used in puddings and meringues. Peel the apples whole, then press them onto a regular grater, turning the apple around in your hand until everything but the core has been grated.

HOSIERY SAVER

Heavy sports skirts often are hard on hosiery. To prevent runs and stop that "scratchy" feeling sew a two-inch facing of thin silk on the inside of the skirt hem.

62% of County Vote Turns Out for Primary; Shields Loses to G. R. Thompson counties early this afternoon gave Congressman Haines large leads in each county and pushed his three-county vote to 23,837. George L. Sichelstiel, York county, received 4,579 votes and Truman Keesey, backed by the C.I.O., trailed with 3,640.

The vote by counties follows: Haines—2,950 in Adams, 4,896 in Franklin, and 15,991 in York; Sichelstiel—382 in Adams, 460 in Franklin, and 3,737 in York, and Keesey—625 in Adams, 260 in Franklin, and 2,755 in York. Complete reports from 146 districts in York county and 69 in Franklin county gave these figures.

No count of the complimentary vote given Chester H. Gross, York county Republican nominee for Congress, was made in Franklin county. In Adams county he received 4,082 votes and in York county his total was 16,147.

Doubt concerning the final outcome on the balloting for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature remained until the last few districts were the only sections unheard from. Then it became a certainty that Richter could not overcome the lead that earlier reports had given Doctor Hartman.

The final unofficial figures are:

Hartman	2,332
Richter	1,666

Deatrick trailed in third place while most of the Republican Legislative figures were being received and by the time half the districts had been heard from the possibility of a close race between Thompson and Shields had practically disappeared.

The unofficial totals for the trio follow:

Thompson	2,781
Shields	1,738
Deatrick	706

First reports were received at the county commissioners office where Republicans gathered and at the Eagle hotel, Democratic headquarters, shortly after 9:30 o'clock when figures on one ticket were telephoned from Farfield. Shortly after 10 o'clock the election board from the second district of Mt. Pleasant township arrived and others followed rapidly.

Board Counts 13 Hours

With four exceptions all returns had been received at the court house by about 3:30 o'clock and all but Franklin township had brought in their tally sheets by daylight.

At 9:15 o'clock this morning the Franklin township board reported their figures at the court house after nearly 13 hours of counting. For the last several years the Franklin township results have been the last to be received after each election.

Radios were set up at the headquarters and the crowds that remained until early morning to hear Adams county results were supplied also with reports of the primary vote in all sections of the state.

The election boards were paid by County Treasurer Ray J. Kitzmiller after they had delivered their ballot boxes, talley sheets and other supplies to Winfield G. Horner, clerk to the county board of elections.

SIGHTS WRECKED PLANE; 9 DEAD

Los Angeles, May 18 (AP).—The sheriff's office received a report from a Mint canyon rancher today that he had sighted the charred wreckage of the missing Lockheed air liner and all nine persons aboard were dead.

The discovery was made by Walter Peterson 20 miles north of Saugus and 1½ miles off the Mint canyon highway in rugged area where a two-day search, hampered by fog, had been in progress.

Officials estimated it would take several hours to reach the wreckage and they expected difficulty in bringing the bodies out of the rough Sierra Pelona region which Peterson described as the scene of the tragic end to a short-cut taken by the liner that had yet to be delivered into transport service.

Air search Tuesday was balked by a fog that still cloaked the mountain peaks of the region this morning as Peterson came in with his report.

VARYING WAGE SCALE FAVORED

Washington, May 18 (AP).—The two senior members of the Senate labor committee agreed today that a varying minimum wage scale was needed for different sections of the county, but disagreed on the method of obtaining it in wage-hour legislation.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the committee said he thought it would be necessary to establish a federal board to fix a varying pay scale.

Senator Borah (R-Ida), ranking minority committeeman, opposed a board although favoring a differential.

The question of a differential to set lower wages for those sections of the country with lower living standards, assumed major proportions in the Senate because of the widespread belief that the House will pass a wage-hour bill next week without such a clause.

The Senate version of the legislation, passed last summer, included a wage differential. Therefore, if the House approves its pending bill, a joint committee must effect a compromise.

Chairman Thomas, who would head the conferees, indicated the posal.

Bonds Filed Here In Two Estates

Papers were filed in two estates Tuesday afternoon at the office of the register and recorder at the court house.

The will of the late Mrs. Miriam A. Weikert, Littlestown, was entered to probate. The instrument names a son, Miles K. Weikert, Hanover, the executor of an estate estimated to be worth $4,000 in personal property. There is a small amount of real estate.

The administration bond in the estate of the late Robert M. Straley, former justice of the peace in New Oxford, also was filed. A son, Claude S. Straley, New Oxford, is administrator of the estate which is placed at about $1,000.

DAUPHIN COURT SEES NEED FOR PRIMARY PROBE

Philadelphia, May 18 (AP)—Judges of the Dauphin county court told the state Supreme court today that an "impartial" grand jury investigation of campaign charges growing out of the primary campaign was necessary to the "best interests of the state."

Judges William M. Hargest, Frank B. Wichersham and John E. Fox filed an answer to the high court's rule asking him to show cause why such an investigation should not be prohibited.

The Dauphin judges listed the reasons the lower court believed the probe should go on and concluded:

"In our opinion, to decide these legal questions as conteended for by the petitioners, would be so serious to the best interests of the state that the importance of them transcends the immediate question of the present controversy, and therefore, without in the slightest degree in reaching any attitude other than a strictly impartial one we have presented our views upon the legal questions involved.

"For these reasons the judges of this court are of the opinion that the situation requires an impartial investigation by a grand jury and that this court has jurisdiction in the premises."
